Description

A historic setting, reimagined for contemporary alpine living. Apartment Padella is an exceptional ground-floor loft in the lovely resort of Celerina, just minutes from St. Moritz.

Occupying the entire lower level of a historic building, the apartment combines architectural character with contemporary design, art, and a unique sense of space.

The building dates back to around 1900. For more than a century, it served as a carpentry workshop before being transformed into a private residence in 2010. The generous proportions and spirit of the original workspace have been carefully preserved and reinterpreted as a distinctive open-plan home.

Large windows fill the interior with natural light, while the expansive living and dining area forms the heart of the apartment. A contemporary open kitchen with a substantial island creates a natural place for cooking, conversation and gathering. Carefully selected artworks and refined furnishings create an atmosphere that is elegant, relaxed and deeply personal.

The primary sleeping area includes an open-style master bedroom with a generous bathroom, freestanding bathtub and walk-in shower. Two further bedrooms each feature their own shower room, offering comfort and privacy for family and friends. Ample wardrobes and storage ensure effortless comfort, even during longer stays.

Surrounded by its own terrace, the apartment offers a peaceful outdoor extension of the living space.

A private underground garage for three cars is included.

For guests travelling with staff, a separate studio can also be rented upon request, at a fee and subject to availability.
